A solo ambulatory practitioner in Lexington is seeking an organized, efficient, dependable assistant for the 2023 breeding season. Candidates should have a positive attitude and good communication skills. Lifting, carrying, and setting up equipment is required, so applicants must have the ability to lift 50 pounds. Job responsibilities include maintaining the vet truck (inventory, organization, cleanliness), assisting with procedure preparation in each barn, keeping accurate and legible stall-side medical records, cleaning/sterilizing equipment, and assisting with procedures on foals, yearlings, and mares. A valid driver's license and reliable personal vehicle are required, as an additional duty is dropping off lab samples and picking up supplies from local veterinary labs and pharmacies.
